CONNECTICUT
COLLEGE

December 2022

Dear members of the Connecticut College community,

Since the last newsletter, Facilities Management and Campus Planning has introduced the College to three new major projects. On Nov. 17, the community had the opportunity to engage with KSS architects on the conceptual designs for the Crozier-Williams renovation. Since then, the project team has been incorporating this feedback into these designs. On Dec. 1, KMDG architects were on campus to share with the community conceptual designs for the Cro-Plex Connector and Cro Boulevard. The civil engineers and landscape architects have been busy updating these designs based on the feedback by faculty, staff and students. We want to thank everyone who was able to attend these group sessions and we will continue to update the community as these projects progress.

The Facilities Management and Campus Planning team has been busy creating a more robust campus planning webpage to engage the community. On these pages, you will find a list of recently completed projects, current and future projects, the master plan and a revised project planning page for initiating campus projects. This site will continue to evolve and we encourage you to check back frequently for more updates!

We hope you enjoy reading about these projects as much as we have enjoyed working with the community on them. This newsletter highlights a couple of these transformative projects.

Wishing you all a restful holiday break!

Campuswide Landscaping Project

---

Over the past year, a campuswide landscaping project has transformed first impressions for our existing and future Camels. The Admission welcome center was refreshed with new paint, sidewalks and plantings, and a welcoming seat wall for visitors to enjoy. Across campus, bike shelters and bike racks were installed and a beautiful new sign was erected at the College's main entrance along Route 32.

Stark Center for the Moving Image in the Moving Image in the Liberal Arts

With a generous gift by the Stark Foundation, a new home for film studies is being created in Hillyer. Students, faculty and staff will benefit from a new editing lab, seminar room and teaching and production space. The project is nearing completion and will be ready for this spring semester.
